ROAD DRAINAGE.

Our Highway Laws and County Highways.

From the Drainage Journal.

Of all the economic questions affecting the welfare of the farmer and every good citizen, there is none of greater importance than the construction and maintenance of public highways, over which they pay taxes and find in their commercial and social relations with each other. The world, we are told, is maintained by intercourse, and of all inventions, the alphabet and printing press excepted, those inventions that bridge existence have done most for civilization. Every improvement of the means of locomotion benefits mankind morally and intellectually, as well as materially, and not only facilitates the interchange of the various productions of nature and art, but tends to remove national and provincial antipathies, and to bind together all branches of the great human family.

How often do we hear farmers deploring the financial situation of the county, denouncing monopolies, or denouncing reform in every branch of our government, forgetting that they themselves are a part of this government, that they are as much to blame for the shortcomings of our laws, and that right here at home many of them make bad laws worse by shirking their duty in regard to them. Where is the intelligent, thinking farmer who has given the subject proper thought, can deny the fact that the highways are in a deplorable condition, and that there is great need of reform in the manner of collecting and expending our highway taxes.

We are told that our highway laws are patterned after those in vogue in the feudal days, when as one of their various duties the tenants were obliged to build and repair the highways. Wherever it originated, our present manner of constructing and maintaining highways is common to a large majority of the States of our Union and is a disgrace to the nineteenth century. Some of the European countries, England and Scotland among the number, are now blessed with fine highways, and of which they are justly proud; but history tells us that England was cursed with roads the counterparts of which are so common in the United States today. It tells us that it was about the year 1760 the people of England began the agitation that eventually forced her to repeal her defective highway laws, and to enact the system which today is her guide.

"The whole science of road making consists in furnishing a solid, dry path on the natural soil, and then keeping it dry by a water proof covering of stone which should form a hardened, smooth surface for transportation," but our overseers usually manage to build road beds which will sink in and retain about all the water that falls on or near them. The first heavy rain which comes turns these improvements into quagmires, and in the latter part of June the farmer, who is obliged to use the highways, can be seen picking his way slowly along while the wheels of his conveyance go down through the "improvements" until they reach soil that has not been disturbed by the road makers. July's hot sun dries the artificial quagmire and soon deep ruts and high hubs of hummocks are formed, over which it is dangerous to ride in a light vehicle, and exceedingly trying in any kind of conveyance. A railroad company has been constantly on its tracks, keeping them in thorough repair, but the wagon road has no one to take care of it—no mudhole is drained, no rut is filled, no hummock is leveled, and when another June comes around the road is in a wretched condition.

After a century of failure it is not about time to change? That is what the intelligent men of the country are now thinking, and the question of adopting a better highway system is being agitated all over the Union. New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Maryland and Missouri have each made changes in their highway laws during the last year or two; but that the reform may be thorough and permanent, there must be a perfect harmony in legislation and unity in aim and purpose—good uniform system must be adopted by the States.

Eight Convicts Escaped from the Falmouth Prison.

The Guard Knocked Down.

Falmouth, Ky., Sept. 8.—Eight convicts escaped from the branch penitentiary here this afternoon at about 5 o'clock. Two of the men were engaged at work on a house on top of the northern boundary wall, under the surveillance of a guard. At a concerted signal one of these, Bruce Redman, a trusty, crept quickly up behind the guard, knocked him down, seized his gun and pistol and then called to the others who were waiting to come out. Six prisoners quickly appeared at the foot of the ladder as it hung, sprang up to the top of the wall and over to the outside and to liberty. Redman covered the guard with his gun until all were over except his fellow workman and himself, both of whom followed at once, upon keeping in the rear of the group and still covering the guard.

As quickly as possible the alarm was given, and a pursuing party was organized, the blood hounds were loosed and put upon the trail, but mounted and armed men followed in hot chase. The escaped prisoners are eight desperate men, and armed partly as they are, they will be a costly party to capture.

The names of the men are: Riley McCoy, of Lawrence county, fifteen years. Jim Way, Bourbon county, five years. Frank McDonough, Jefferson county, two years. William Quinn, Jefferson county, five years. John Fern, Jefferson county, three years. Dan Hatcher, Letcher county, five years. Bruce Redman, Jefferson county, six years. Thos. Callahan, Pulaski county, three years.

They are all white and all young men except McDonough.

Skipped.

Pete Buckalew, who was shot by Mrs. Beard, has skipped out for parts unknown. There was a charge of manslaughter against him. He is a big, strong, suspicious about his standing trial, with a posse went to the house where Pete was supposed to be and found that he was gone. The neighborhood was searched but no Pete was found.

Married.

Thursday Mr. Sam Henry, of this place, and Miss Lucy Jennings, daughter of Mr. J. R. Jennings, who lives two miles west of Marion, were united in marriage. Their many friends wish them unalloyed happiness.

Married, at the residence of Jas. Lowery Sept. 8, 1890, Silas F. King to Miss Elizabeth Drennan, Rev. B. F. McMan officiating.

Deaths Recorded.

F. M. Crum to Wyatt Hunt, 14 years, at 12:00.
H. D. Baldwin to T. S. Croft 49 years, at 8:45.
M. L. Daniel to W. L. Nunn interest in land.
J. W. Blue to J. W. S. Dameron 58 years, at 8:10.
J. J. Bennett to E. M. Dalton, 180 acres, at 8:20.
J. S. McDowell to D. J. Brown 70 years, at 8:25.
Adams & Crum to A. A. Davenport interest in land for $125.
Chapel Nunn to Minnie L. Daniel interest in land.

From Monday evening until Tuesday the county was without a coroner; yet there was no clash of worlds. Monday evening Della Flannery, who has made an excellent officer, qualified as assistant assessor and left the office of coroner vacant until Tuesday when his successor, Mr. Belmeier, qualified.

On Thursday of last week representatives of nine iron bridge companies, were in town to bid for the construction of an iron bridge across Claylick creek on Salem and Dycusburg road and on the line between Crittenden and Livingston counties.

Henry Hodge, commissioner from Livingston county, and J. L. Clifton, commissioner for Crittenden county, met the agents here, and after a comparison of all bids, let the contract to the Wrought Iron Bridge Co., of Canton, O., for $1200.

For the next 30 days J. H. Morse will sell you the right to his patent Kitchen Rack in one State for $50.

He will sell but 30 States this way. Parties wanting to make a few hundred dollar in the patent business will do well to see him at once.

Dr. Jenkins makes a specialty of filling badly decayed teeth with gold or silver and making tightly fitting artificial teeth for difficult mouths.

Office over Clark & Co., where the doctor remains for a few days.

The Camp Meeting.

Closed Monday. There were about 140 conversions and sixty old additions to the church. The entire community was stirred up religiously by the meetings and the greatest meeting ever held in the community.

The management was good, and denominational lines were cast aside, and church people went to work. The closing scenes were impressive, and will long be remembered in that community. Every thing will be arranged for the meeting next year, and it is thought that there will be between 50 and 100 families in camp.

Radam's Microbe Killer Co., Nashville, Tenn.

Gentlemen—I take pleasure in testifying to the remarkable benefit I have recently received from the use of Radam's Microbe Killer. I have been much troubled with chills and night sweats for months, and after trying a great many remedies to no avail, bought a jug of Microbe Killer and was completely cured in ten days.

Respectfully, J. J. Smith.

Frankfort, Ky., March 15, 1890.

For sale by Hillyard & Woods.

Sale Notice.

I will on Saturday, Sept. 20, 1890, at the farm I recently sold, near Caldwell Springs, sell to the highest bidder, on credit of 15 months, a lot of horses, cattle, hogs, corn, hay and farming implements, a crop of tobacco that will be housed by that day. All sums under $5, cash in hand. Notes with approved security required. J. J. BENNETT.

S. C. Haynes, of the Monitor, was here Friday, as was Dan Browning also.

Rammore has a curiosity in the shape of an egg. It resembles a previousness that is distressing to contemplate.

We noticed some Marionites at the camp meeting last week, viz: J. G. Haynes, Bob Moore, H. T. Flannery, etc. etc.

There is a splendid opening at this point for a roller mill. The nearest mill on this side of the river being 12 miles away.

Excuse us this week as we had a three days' twinge of the gout.

Of those "cowcubers."

News of a local nature left at the business house of Clement & Croft, will be gladly received.

We are teaching "skowl" during this autumnal warmth, at Caney Fork school house. The attendance is very good; that is I have not attempted to whip either of the two scholars yet. The house is of the great men style—logs with mother earth betwixt them. The door was a pretty fair piece of furniture until some thoughtful imbecile used it as a target and perforated it at short range with iron bolts. What in the world the man shot those slugs out of we know not, except it was an ash hopper.

Beard & Belt, the grocers, have added a new line of goods to their stock, consisting of goods furnishing goods, jeans pants, etc.

A J. Bennett, the jovial river bottom planter, has some of the finest watermelons yet ever beheld. Sir Wallace is the tradesman and drives a good big, as good melons are in demand. We still live back of Hurricane church, Mr. Bennett.

The recent rains have brought the corn out very much.

Some timber men were here last week buying hickory timber. It won't be long until they will want the apple trees and rose bushes.

P. B. Croft's new house on the hill is of the style of H. H. Loving's and is a very pretty edifice.

Tolu has some slap up good looking boys—Dean Brunel fellows, out and out. As Walter Clement wears seven dollar trousers you might suppose he was the greatest of them all; but nay, verily. His hair, his hair; yet not exactly his hair, but the place where the wool ought to grow wags, sadly wags his olive complexion. We understand he purchased a bottle of curl restorer from a bald headed man last week, and has already ordered a ringlet wig.

Next week we will tell you all about one of the finest, and continue each week until we describe the gang.

We will sell you for 30 days, for cash only:

QUERIES ANSWERED.

BY G. G. W.

Min. —

(1) No. Ministers are not always "modest," but they are sometimes compelled to be retiring.

(2) Yes. The word "trust" is a beautiful synonyme of faith; but used commercially in the plural nowadays, it does not inspire confidence.

(3) No. It is not more machinery your Church wants, but more consecration, — a suggestion which some other religious bodies may equally well heed.

(4) The age of miracles is not past. Hercules and Sampson are but pigmies compared with a man in a dime show who lifts a live horse with his teeth and who is advertised as "certainly the invincible monarch of mankind."

(5) The best contribution to the resources of a church is an industrious man or woman, animated by the spirit of Christ.

Mr. — "Why don't you write for the — I don't like the Press. I don't see what its published for. Well, my friend, I'll tell you. Its published for one dollar a year in advance, and — why the record, you now owe Mr. Walker for three years."

Miss — "I learn that Hyron was clubbed. That just shows that physical infirmities do not conflict with genius." No, I believe not, unless one happens to be a blockhead.

(2) If you want to be well informed, subscribe for the Press. Even a paper of pins may give you some good points.

(3) Religion is often confounded with emotion. "Is a serious mistake, which accounts for the faulty and unfruitful lives of many professors. Of course there is emotion in religion — as there is in life. But these two are not synonymous. A religion of mere emotion is a religion of gush."

—, lawyer: (1) Judge Moore's charge was all right. It was the lawyer's charge that worried him.

(2) No. Domestic skeletons are usually found of the bones of contention.

(3) A lamp may be polished brightly on the outside and may reflect the sunlight during the daytime, but its usefulness at night depends somewhat upon having a wick in the burner and oil inside. There is no objection to a "polished" attorney, provided he will burn when he is needed.

"A dissatisfied church member." As the church is divided about it, and "some say that it will drive them out of the church." I think the wisest course for you is to buy the "organ" and put it in the distillery, and see if it won't keep the "other party" out of that place also.

School Girl: (1) An answer to your question demands, and deserves, an answer that I cannot give in this column. I will endeavor to answer it, in my feeble way, in a separate column. See "Our School Girls."

(2) Those ladies "who wish to keep posted," I would advise to subscribe for the Press at once.

(3) If you cannot agree in matters of faith, you should never be wanting in the courtesy and urbanity which Christians of all denominations owe to one another.

(4) "Are you going to the Chicago World's Fair?" That is so far ahead I haven't given much thought. But the discovery of North America by the Indians is so interesting, and they were so far ahead of Columbus that I think they ought to hold the World's Fair in the Indian Territory.

(5) No. Paul was never less infatigable than when he asked women to obey their husbands. And the women have found it out.

Mrs. — (1) "I have been married nearly — years and my husband and I have neither of us shown ill temper, nor have we had the least misunderstanding." If that is really so you have missed the fun of being up, which is, perhaps the thing in love, after all. To end the claim of the sea one must be the terrors of the tempest.

"Is eucalyptus an old game?" Yes; the hills. When the poor man couldn't go it alone, the Levite passed, and the Samaritan assisted, and won the game.

(3) "He is so persistent in his attentions, and watches me so closely that I really think he is not just right in his mind." How discerning you are! Exactly the same idea occurred to me.

Mrs. —, Marion: (1) If your husband worries about not having leisure time, and is honest about wanting it, tell him to take his advertisement out of the Press.

(2) I suppose the reason that griffins, dragons, and devils are the ladies' favorite subjects for embroidery designs, is because they are continually thinking of their husbands.

(3) More than you are troubled with "wanting" in their minds. However, don't trouble about that, you can go far.

Miss — Yes: I believe there is a Supreme Being who delights in justice and mercy, whom all are bound to obey, and whose worship consists in the practice of justice and charity toward our neighbors.

(2) No. The sin of the Pharisees was not for the eating of camels, even if it "is written, 'they strained at gnats and swallowed camels.'"

(3) Yes, it is a sin for you to take pleasure in people calling you "beautiful." It is certainly wrong to encourage anyone to tell a falsehood.

Rail Splitter. No. Political corruption, while spread ignorance, and moral degeneracy are present and dangerous foes to be feared and conquered. The demagogue to-day is more to be feared than the rebel.

(2) "I have succeeded in getting — school. Couldn't you give me a good puff?" I hardly think it would be safe. Your qualifications are so weak that a "puff" would blow you to pieces.

(3) "Do you believe in the mental cure?" Oh, yes; but one must have a mind, you know, to start with.

(4) "Should a gentleman always sit when he carves?" Carvers who get on the table and have a wrestling match with the chicken or turkey are known by some other name.

"Attorney." "Bob Walker is a shrewd man. I have known him for years. He seldom asks a person to do a thing unless he thinks he can do it." Yep! What was he about then, the other day, when he asked the writer to say a few words on the subject of "Assurance?"

Sunday School Teacher. (1) The old education, after the style of old ecclesiasticism, was the assumption of the cultivated class of an exclusive right to mold childhood and youth according to an infallible theory.

Till the age of Luther, this class was mainly the priesthood; and the reins of church and school were clutched in an iron fist at Rome.

(2) The chief object of prayer is not that we may bend the divine will to our own, but that we may bend our will to the divine.

(3) You need not be troubled about "whether all the saints on earth will see Christ at the same moment of time on his return from heaven, or whether they must await the ordinary revolution of earth, and thus allow some to behold him several hours before others?" We suggest that the better way is to learn to see Christ as he daily comes to judge the world through his precepts and example. A SENECA.

On last Wednesday night, Max, a Seneca, of Seneca, Germany, a German about 28 years of age, committed suicide at the Tota Hotel at this place by taking morphine. There was found a bottle which had just had the wrapper taken off under the edge of his bed and was about half emptied. It is supposed that he took at least half of the bottle. He had been working for Holt & Brauburn up to that evening, when he came to town, secured a room at the above hotel where he committed the rash deed of self-destruction. There was found in his pockets a knife, comb, and 20c in money. —Sturgis Enterprise.

MONTHLY CROP REPORT.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 3. —The Commissioner of Agriculture to-day issued the following crop report:

CORN.

2,276 farmers had, in 1888, 80,266 acres. The same farmers have in 1889 75,032 acres. This makes the acreage of 1889 about 91 per cent of the 1888 acreage. At this date last year the condition was 105. This year the condition is 75, or 30 per cent worse than last year. The crop is very much improved since the rains, and much of the late corn on good land, with good cultivation will make a good average crop. Generally cultivation has not been as good as usual, caused by late planting and excessive spring rains.

TORRADO.

According to received from reliable correspondents from the chief tobacco counties of the State, 2845 farmers raised in 1889, 21,580 acres. The same farmers have in 1890, 17,700 acres; of course a larger amount of farmers might change somewhat the per cent, of difference, more or less. In my report of Sept. 4th, 1889, I gave the acreage of 89 at 624 per cent, of the 88 acreage, or 374 per cent, less than 88. According to comparative acreage of 1889 and 1890 given above, the acreage of 1890 is about 82 per cent of 1889. The 1888 crop was the largest ever produced in this State in both acreage and pounds, and has been held as a constant menace to even remunerative prices for certain grades. This crop is a large that it could not receive proper attention in its culture; handling, curing, and ordering. The result was a larger amount of inferior tobacco that could not find a consumptive demand, and has been hawked about without a friend, and has generally entailed upon its owners a loss.

The present crop started out badly, ly, and so discouraging was the prospect during the dry weather, that many of our very best farmers supposed the crop would be almost a failure. But general rains during August has benefited the crop beyond all expectations, and on new land, where it has been properly cultivated many fine crops are promised. On the old land it is very badly missing in the hill, and is not so promising, except where it has received exceptionally good cultivation. Old land crops have been tardy in growth, and are uneven. The new growth given the plant by the August rains warrant late maturity, and rains during this month would seriously imperil all but the early cutting.

At this date last year fully 20 per cent of the crop had fallen before the knife and was being rapidly housed. Not a portion of last year's planting was caught by the frost, and a good deal had been frozen.

With an open dry September, much of the crop promises to be of excellent quality. Rainy weather will make it just the reverse.

At this writing the crop is in full, but there is not exceeding 5 per cent out. One of the greatest dangers is a frost scare, which will cut before it is ripe.

In my report of August 11 I gave addition at 69 per cent; the condition now is 53 per cent, compared with last year. Of course this includes the State, and is not necessarily true in any given county or locality, some being better and some worse.

—LOUISVILLE MARKET.

More favorable report this week on the growing crop has caused desire among holders to sell, but it is exactly as stamped but anxious to let go and crowd the market with all they will bear. As the pressure to sell has been greater than the desire to buy, with natural results — a dragging market with downward tendency. This is to be said of the best grade of flour, for their is always so much demand for the tops that they decline under pressure to sell, and are not as much of the best in the last crop as is wanted the lower grades however have held and barely held to last week's. A good deal of the inferior had order.
